

President Trump was elected after a 2005 tape was released in which he is heard bragging vulgarly about kissing and groping women. Then-candidate Trump said, "And when you're a star, they let you do it. You can do anything. Grab 'em by the p****. You can do anything." Additionally, 26 women have publicly accused Trump of sexual misconduct. Eighty percent of white Evangelical Christians voted for him, and their support did not diminish four years later, but President-elect Biden did make inroads with white Catholics.

[Pictured: Attorney Gloria Allred holds a photo of Jessica Drake with Donald Trump, taken in 2006 during an event where Drake alleges Trump behaved in a sexually inappropriate way toward her, on Oct. 22, 2016 in Los Angeles, California.]