STATEMENT OF JAYMEE

I was living in fear because Daniel was out there somewhere.

I was worried about what he might say or do while he was free and not in the custody of law enforcement.

Daniel needs to take responsibility for what he has done wrong.

I am concerned. Because he decided to escape, it seemed that he was not willing to face the criminal justice system.

I am thankful that no one including my family, myself, Daniel or any member of the public or law enforcement was hurt in the process of finding and capturing Daniel.

The Army needs to own up and fix what they are doing wrong in transporting a soldier arrested on a rape charge, so that no other family has to go through the fear of their lives being taken because of their irresponsibility.
