Response of Attorney Gloria Allred to new development in the "Rust" criminal case

No matter what happens in the criminal case in New Mexico which was filed against Alec Baldwin, we are committed to proceeding with our civil lawsuit on behalf of our clients. We represent Mamie Mitchell, the former script supervisor for "Rust." In addition, we represent Halyna's mother Olga Solovey, Halyna's father Anatolii Androsovyh, and Halyna's sister Svetlana Zemko.

Despite the prosecutor's decision to dismiss the criminal charge against Alec Baldwin without prejudice, the victims of Alec Baldwin that we represent remain hopeful.

Mr. Baldwin has tried to dismiss our civil case against him, and he has failed. He has argued to the Court that we should not be permitted to seek punitive damages in our lawsuit against him, and he has failed.

He has even sunk so low as to attack Halyna Hutchins' grieving mother, father, and sister for seeking to make him accountable for his part in the death of Halyna Hutchins.

Mr. Baldwin should know that we remain committed to fighting and winning for our clients and holding him accountable for pointing a loaded gun at Halyna Hutchins, pulling the trigger, and killing her.

Mr. Baldwin may pretend that he is not responsible for pulling the trigger and ejecting a live bullet which ended Halyna's life.

He can run to Montana and pretend that he is just an actor in a wild west movie but, in real life, he cannot escape from the fact that he had a major role in a tragedy which had real life consequences for Halyna, her mother, father, sister, and co-worker.

No matter where Alec Baldwin goes, whether it is to Montana or an expensive restaurant in New York City, he cannot escape responsibility for his role in shooting and killing Halyna, who was a young mother, a beloved daughter, a loving sister, and an admired co-worker.

We look forward to seeing Alec Baldwin in court where a jury will decide if Alec Baldwin is just a movie star or a defendant who should be held accountable for the tragic death of Halyna Hutchins.
